Abstract

Systems and methods for processing defaulted loans are described. In some embodiments, the systems and methods process a defaulted loan by associating the defaulted loan with a loan state, identifying a loan event that relates the loan state to another loan state, and, based on detecting the identified loan event, performing a loan task associated with the identified loan event.